

Managed payments checklist

Before registering

Have the following information handy:

To activate your account for managed payments, verify your identity and your business info by providing the following information required for eBay to remain compliant with legal regulations:

Business info

If you are a registered business, do you know your business type? You can typically find this in official documents, such as tax returns or bank statements.

Company registration number

You can typically find this in official documents, such as tax returns or bank statements.

Current account info

The name or business name on the registered eBay account must match the name or business name on the current account, so we can verify the individual or business receiving funds is the same individual or business managing the eBay account. You can edit the name on your eBay account in the Account section of My eBay.

Note: The person adding the current account must be authorized to: 1) access this bank account; 2) approve debits on this account.

Tip: Payouts will be paid to your current account. You can use an existing account, or create a new one.

Identification information of directors or each person who owns 25% or more of your business, if applicable

In case there are any issues with your eBay account, we need this info to know who to contact first. This information is only used for record keeping and regulatory purposes. This information is only used for record keeping and regulatory purposes.

A recent bank document, such as a statement, no older than 12 months may be required

This keeps eBay compliant with legal regulations. Any transactions or amounts can be blacked out to protect your privacy. We'll only use this document for verification purposes.

Takeaway

Providing complete and accurate information will help us verify your identity and your business info efficiently, which reduces disruptions to your business and delayed payouts.

What's next

We will notify you of your account activation date two weeks ahead of your activation date, and again two business days before. Until then, it's business as usual.

After registration

A few things to note as you prepare your business:

We will notify you of your account activation date two weeks ahead of your activation date, and again two business days before

Until then, it's business as usual.

Updating your existing listings

Within 24 hours of activation, your listings are automatically updated with supported payment methods. You may not be able to list certain items. See the managed payments restricted items policy.

Third party tools support

If you use third-party tools that integrate with eBay APIs to manage your listing, inventory, and order management activities, to reconcile finances, or issuing refunds, there should be no change in how you use those tools when you are activated for managed payments. Please contact your individual third-party provider regarding questions specific to their service offerings.

Reports

If you use PayPal reports, now you can manage all your selling and payments data needs from within your eBay account, with downloadable, customisable reports on the Payments tab in Seller Hub for easier reconciliation.

Your existing eBay integrations

If you are directly integrated with eBay APIs or MIP, you may need to make updates to get new payments data and functionality. You will need to integrate the Finance API to get payout details. Learn more about managed payments APIs.

Fees updates and your reconciliations

eBay charges one updated final value fee when your item sells. The final value fee consists of a category-based percentage of the total amount of the sale, plus a fixed fee per order, with no third-party payments processing fees. This may require updates to your reconciliation processes. See fee details.

Getting more help

Get more help with your payments questions. Stay up to date on the Seller Centre.

Takeaway

Your final value fees will be automatically deducted from your sales, and the balance paid out to your bank account. This may require updates to your reconciliation processes.

Your listings will be automatically updated with more ways for buyers to pay.
